a note from the pastor

Hello friends at Winter Park Presbyterian Church. I have met many of you at church, but I wanted to introduce myself to everyone. I grew up in Memphis, Tennessee attending Idlewild Presbyterian Church, I went to a Catholic high school run by the Christian Brothers. Then I went to Presbyterian College and Louisville Presbyterian Seminary.

At college I met my wife, Nancy. She and I married the summer between my first and second years in seminary. She's from Winter Park and sang in the children's choir here for a year or two back in the 1970s.

My first church was on Edisto Island in South Carolina then I came to Apopka to serve at St. Andrews Pres. It was good because we were closer to Nancy's parents, and they could help us raise the three children we had while on Edisto. I got my Doctor of Ministry at Columbia Seminary in Atlanta. Then I went to work for the Presbyterian Foundation, and we lived in Oxford, Mississippi for four years until I was laid off by the foundation.

We then went to Northminster Presbyterian Church in Pensacola. My children went to middle and high school there. Then I came to Orlando to be chaplain at Westminster Towers downtown. For a few years I worked in their development department then I went to be the interim associate pastor at First Presbyterian in Ocala, FL.

After a year and a half, the senior pastor at FPC Ocala decided he wanted to leave, so they asked me to be the interim pastor, which I did for two years.

I like to watch sports on TV or in person. I love to ride my bicycle. At one time I trained for and did several Century Rides – 100 miles in one day. That was fun, but hard. Now I ride a lot shorter distances. Nancy and I live near downtown Orlando. Our children are grown and married; they all have daughters. So, I have five granddaughters and no grandsons. Maybe one will come along.

I love serving God in His church. Thank you for the opportunity to serve here at Winter Park Presbyterian Church.

Walt

invites you to a*

WELCOME HOME LUNCHEON

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 21
FOLLOWING THE 10:30 SERVICE

The primary purpose of this gathering is to celebrate what it means to be at Home at WPPC, to meet and greet one another, and share the fellowship that comes from being at Home in Christ.

The meal will be catered by Chef Scott. There is no cost for the meal as it has been underwritten by a donor. However, if you choose to, you may make a donation. Reservations are due on Wednesday, September 17, by calling the church office at 407-647-1467, signing up on the bulletin board in the office hallway, or looking for the "Sign Up Sisters" in the narthex.

There is no formal program. This will be a time of fellowship as we take a pause from our busy lives to just chat and enjoy one another. It will also be another opportunity to celebrate the arrival of our new Interim Pastor, the Rev. Dr. Walk Jones. The congregation is invited and encouraged to reach out to former members, neighbors and friends to join in this time of fellowship.

Plan to come and experience the warmth
of what it means to be at Home!

NEIGHBORS & FRIENDS

The Neighbors and Friends Ministry is kicking off the new year of activities with a catered luncheon and a special program!

Our very own professional photographer, Frank Jamison, will present a program on the art of taking pictures and we will see examples of his work. Frank would like to answer questions you have about how to take photographs or how he chooses his subjects. There will also be an envelope by the front hall sign up sheet to drop in any written questions you have for Frank. Plan to join us as we explore the world of photography and learn from this gifted member of WPPC.

As always, feel free to bring your own lunch and join us around the tables, or you may join us for only the program.

We look forward to seeing you as we meet to celebrate being Neighbors and Friends united by Christ!

RSVP by 9/15

Call the church office or sign up on the bulletin board in the front office hallway.

Promising New Treatment for Lower Back Pain

- Article submitted by Wendy Stafford

Lower back pain affects 1 in 5 U.S. adults, but a new, long-lasting treatment for chronic low back pain may offer hope and relief to many. Cognitive Functional Therapy, or CFT, has helped even those with disabling pain enjoy sustained effects with regular CFT treatment sessions.

Cognitive Functional Therapy is a personalized approach designed to help people overcome chronic low back pain by not only addressing the physical aspects of pain, but also the thoughts, emotions, and behaviors that can contribute to it. CFT works by helping individuals understand how their beliefs, habits, and movement patterns may influence their pain experience.

Through guided strategies, education, and movement practice, patients learn to move more freely and confidently, reduce fear and avoidance, and gradually return to their normal activities. This holistic method is tailored to each person's unique needs, aiming for lasting pain relief and improved quality of life.

According to ABC News, the results of the recent RESTORE trial held in Australia showed that study participants reported fewer pain symptoms at the end of the study after taking part in only eight CFT sessions over six months compared to those who used other types of therapy.

CFT doesn't use pills or surgery to provide relief but can be used in conjunction with other treatments to help patients overcome their fear of pain and stay more active, explained Mark Hancock, lead author of the study and a professor of physiotherapy at Macquarie University. His research focuses on the diagnosis and management of back pain.

The treatment was successful even in patients who had been suffering from back pain for years and had tried multiple treatments. Even in this group, a relatively short course of CFT led to impactful, lasting improvement. The researchers said that the shift in the patient's mindset during treatment sessions was the underlying key to meaningful pain relief.

There are not many things that we can say that gives patients three years of relief after an intervention, but this evidence is quite encouraging. Ask your health care provider about this therapy if you are experiencing lower back pain.

Deacons' Den

Debbie Pauzar

Whenever we gather for meetings or for other activities such as the Hannah Circle, we always begin with a Devotional and Prayer. This places our focus on the Lord and our desire to do all things in and through Him.

Last year, Lisa Dreasher gave this devotional at one of our Deacon meetings that was so powerful, I asked her to send me a copy of it. I want to share this prayer with you in the hope that as we pray this prayer, God will instill in our hearts the desire to serve Him as an active member of this church and in our everyday lives.

May He bless our service as we strive to meet the challenges we face as a church. And may He also abundantly fill us with love for one another so that we may show His light to a world in desperate need of Him.

God has surely listened

Psalm 66:19

Lord Jesus Christ, Servant of all,
Send Your Spirit upon me as I serve Your church.

Give me eyes to see the needs of Your people.
Give me a discerning mind to know Your truth.
Give me a humble heart when my work goes unnoticed.
Give me peace of mind in obedience and service.
Give me health of body so I may serve with strength.
Make me fertile ground for Your inspiration and love.
Comfort me when I question myself and my witness.
Grant me grace as I age so I may share Your wisdom.

And make my heart like Yours so I may love Your people.

In Your Name,
Amen

Below Audrey Santiago shares her latest newsletter from Transitions Orphan Assistance Foundation in Odesa, Ukraine.

August 17, 2025

Dear Friends,

Summer has always been a magical time for me, especially summers spent in Odesa. Picture, if you can, long hot days and short, warm evenings perfect for strolling in the parks or on the boulevard overlooking the port. Picture children playing on the playgrounds, parents and grandparents chatting on park benches, and men gathered in the square to play chess. Picture market stalls filled with all manner of nature's summer bounty, and miles and miles of seashore beckoning one to come and enjoy the sun, sand and sea. When I close my eyes and think of Odesa summers, that is what I see.

I did not spend this summer in Odesa, but I understand that summer days there have largely remained unchanged, except perhaps, that the hordes of tourists that used to crowd Odesa's streets, beaches, and restaurants are now few and far between. Folks are not flocking to Odesa these days for vacation as was typical in the past, but the natives are doing their best to live their lives as normally as possible.

By contrast, nights conjure a completely different picture. Night is the time that Russia has chosen to attack -- brutally and often. Drones and missiles take to the sky each night across Ukraine, terrorizing those on the ground below. Attacks on Odesa and other cities in Ukraine have escalated this summer and civilians have been frequently targeted. Those in Odesa are accustomed to spending nights huddled in shelters and hallways, wondering if they will see the light of a new day.

Miraculously, our folks have survived thus far, and they are doing more than just surviving. Our teammates in Odesa have been especially busy this summer conducting summer VBS-style mini-camps for our orphans and at-risk families in the villages. By the end of this month, they will have made twelve trips to various villages bringing relationship, fun, and joy to our kids and families as well as to any neighborhood families who wished to join in the activities. These camps were made possible because of folks like you who generously support our orphan programs. Thank you so much for providing us with the means to make this happen. These camps mean so much to so many. Please enjoy these photos of your gifts in action.

In other news, we have rejoiced that two of our older orphans, Pasha and Radik, were given leave from the army for a few days this summer to spend time with their families. A return to active duty on dangerous fronts is daunting. Please keep them in your thoughts and prayers as they bravely face whatever the future will bring.

And please send healing thoughts and prayers for Sasha, one of our girls in the Rybakovs' foster family. She recently had an accident that seriously injured her heel. She has undergone surgery and we are anxiously waiting to hear if the surgery will be a success or if she will need more surgeries and additional treatment.

Now, as another summer quietly slips away, we remain ever thankful for each one of you who keep us close in your hearts.

With gratitude and love,

Audrey

Phyllis Woods wrote this poem for her husband, Alan, who is a school crossing guard. A big THANK You to Phyllis for sharing it with us and to Alan for making sure the kids get to school safely!

SCHOOL CROSSING GUARD

It's a post that provides
 Scenes of life that go by
 There are kids with their phones
 There are kids that say "Hi"

There are kids that walk past
 With a lot on their minds
 There are some with a smile
 And a spirit that shines

There are drivers who smile
 There are drivers that frown
 There are kids in a bunch
 With the one who's class clown

There are times no one's there
 And I stare into space
 There are times there's a rush
 Like a scene in a race

There are days when it rains
 Water drips all around
 And I artfully dodge
 Pools that form on the ground

There's the heat and I roast
 In the Florida sun
 And I turn into toast
 That is way overdone

But there's much to be said
 For this job that I know
 That puts you out there
 With the kids as they grow

And the smiles and the waves
 They become the reward
 Of a day in the life
 Of a school crossing guard.
